THE FACTS

- Large numbers of Americans are staying physically active and athletic into their older years, much more so than previous generations. One result is that muscle and joint stress are being experienced by more of the population. The need for a product that addresses this problem is rising, and an approach that is non-invasive, easy to use and convenient is especially in demand.
- Based on clinical findings, cetyl myristoleate is believed to act as an anti-inflammatory. It also possesses natural surfactant and lubricant properties, in support of smooth joint and muscle movement.
- Cetyl myristoleate is a completely natural compound. CM Complex Skin Cream is a highly purified, refined formula produced from this source material.
- Use of cetyl myristoleate has been studied at the U.S. National Institutes of Health for decades. Clinical trials concluded that there are no harmful or side effects in use of this compound, which makes it an ideal product for topical (surface) application as desired.
- CM Complex Skin Cream is formulated with pi water, which also helps decrease viscosity and promotes more consistent coverage.
- Magna-Cell Technology encapsulates the material in liposomes. A liposome is a tiny bubble or vesicle, made out of the same material as a cell membrane. This allows it to be rapidly absorbed by the skin.
- The 4-ounce tube provides a generous supply of the cream. This is available in a 3-pack. The sample size features 15 individual packets, with product cards that can be attached to each sample.
